SUPPLEMENTAL DECLARATION OF JOSEPH R. SAVERI IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR ATTORNEYS' FEES, REIMBURSEMENT
OF EXPENSES, AND INCENTIVE

17 1. I am an attorney licensed in the State of California and admitted to practice in the 18 Northern District of California. I am the founder of Joseph Saveri Law Firm, Inc. ("JSLF"), Co-Lead 19 Counsel for the Class Representatives and the proposed Settlement Class. I have personal knowledge of 20 the facts set forth herein and could competently testify to them if called as a witness.

21 2. I submit this Supplemental Declaration in support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Attorneys'
22 Fees, Reimbursement of Expenses, and Incentive Awards, and to clarify certain issues with the time 23 that I submitted in the fee application submitted on May 7, 2015. Docket No. 1073. In the time since 24 my declaration was filed, I and my staff working under my direction reviewed my firm's time records 25 in the case. As a result of that review, I have determined that certain changes are appropriate. The 26 purpose of this Declaration is, out of an abundance of caution and in the spirit of disclosure, to bring 27 those matters to the Court.
28

1 3. This Supplemental Declaration provides additional details concerning my time-keeping 2 practices and further explanation of certain tasks described in my prior Declaration at Docket No. 1073,
3 which was accurate and truthful as supplemented here. I believe my firm's time-keeping practices
4 identify the general subject matters of time expenditure consistent with Ninth Circuit standards.

5 4. With respect to my personal practices in recording time, most of the daily time records
6 were prepared as follows. Virtually all of the daily entries were created by hand by recording the task 7 performed and the date and duration of each task by the tenth of an hour. Some of the entries were 8 entered directly into the firm's electronic billing system and there is no hand-written record. The great 9 majority of the hand written entries was created on the day the tasks were done or within two weeks of 10 when the work was done. To the extent a hand-written time record was created a week or more after the 11 work was done, I used contemporaneous records created by me or another time-keeper at my firm to 12 confirm the tasks that I had completed that day, such as personal calendar entries; emails; hand-written 13 notes of phone calls or meetings; litigation documents (for example, deposition transcripts, hearing 14 transcripts, draft court filings) and documents that had been edited or saved on JSLF's internal 15 document-management system. Periodically, these hand-written entries were typed into an electronic 16 billing system. Other time-keepers at JSLF followed a similar procedure, and the majority of the daily 17 time records submitted to the Court were created in this way. I believe these practices are consistent 18 with established practices in this Circuit.

19 5. In recording time spent on a case, there is of course always the possibility of error.
20 Since filing my Declaration at Docket No. 1073, I have removed certain time entries, and JSLF is 21 replacing Exhibit 4 filed with my Declaration at Docket No. 1073, with the Exhibit 1 attached hereto.
22 Specifically, entries totaling 17.7 hours have been removed, reflecting work that was entered in my 23 firm's billing database at or around the time the work was done in 2012 and 2013 but not posted until 24 the preparation of the final report, attached to my Declaration at Docket No. 1073. These entries reflect 25 block-billed entries that were separated at the time of the preparation of the final bill. Specifically, I
26 have identified ten days for which there was an attempt to correct certain JSLF time entries to eliminate 27 block billing. Due to entry errors after the corrections were made, some duplicate time was entered for 28 the tasks when they were separated and entered into my firm's billing system. This amounts to less than

1 ten hours of attorney time. I have been able to confirm from contemporaneous records that work 2 described in these entries was done, but have deleted these entries to address any concerns as to their 3 accuracy. Out of caution, I removed even successful corrections for block billing, reflected in a chart
4 attached as Exhibit 2 hereto. In addition, I have examined my firm's time entries related to class
5 certification and experts. There were 108.23 hours of JSLF billed time entries on these subjects in the 6 Exhibit 3 attached to my prior Declaration at Docket No. 1073 which are removed from the attached 7 replacement at Exhibit 1 hereto. These entries are summarized in the Exhibit 2 chart. The purpose of 8 these adjustments is to be as conservative as possible. In addition, in reviewing the time entries, we 9 identified a time entry for a JSLF time-keeper for August 29, 2012 indicating 120 hours for the day.
10 This entry has been deleted in its entirety from the revised fee application. Reducing JSLF time by the 11 17.7 hours, the 108.23 additional hours, and the entry for 120 hours amounts to a total reduction of 12 245.93 hours or $189,204.80 in billed time. The reduction results in a revised total lodestar for JSLF of 13 $6,314,819.25. With this adjustment, the aggregate lodestar for all plaintiffs' counsel equals 14 $20,594,097.75, and the multiplier sought by Plaintiffs' counsel equals 3.9392, rather than 3.89 as 15 previously set forth in the JSLF brief in support of the fee application.¹

16 6. As the senior and founding attorney of JSLF, I have personal knowledge of the billing 17 and time-keeping practices of the other professionals at my firm. Other time-keepers in this and other 18 cases at JSLF entered their daily time entries into the electronic database maintained by my firm
19 directly. Most of these entries were entered into the database within a month from the time the work
20 was done. To the extent the entries were for work done on a date prior to entry, the entries were made 21 by time-keepers based on their recollection, as refreshed by contemporaneously-created documents 22 such as such as personal calendar entries; emails; hand-written notes of phone calls or meetings; 23 litigation documents (for example, deposition transcripts, hearing transcripts, draft court filings) and 24 documents that had been edited or saved on JSLF's internal document-management system.

26 ¹ The spreadsheet previously attached as Exhibit 3 (Docket No. 1073) and references to it in the Saveri
27 Declaration include an incorrect aggregate total of the number of hours. The number of hours for each 28 time-keeper and total lodestar calculation set forth in the previous Exhibit 3 are correct, as was the lodestar calculation throughout the fee application.

1 7. During the course of this litigation and pursuant to this Court's Case Management 2 Orders at Document Nos. 64, 144, and 147, JSLF exchanged time summary reports with LCHB. These 3 time summary reports were based on the entry into an electronic data base of the daily time records 4 described above. These summary reports were labelled as "Pre-Bills" and were not intended to 5 represent a final bill for legal services, as I understand that term to be used in the context of lawyers
6 who have hourly fee agreements with clients. They were intended to inform Co-Lead Counsel generally
7 about the nature of the work performed. Over time, some of the time reported was written down (either 8 deleted entirely or the time reduced) or edited. In other situations, when it was determined that time 9 was mistakenly entered in other open litigation matters, the time entries were reclassified and entered in 10 the correct matter. This occurred with respect to time entered incorrectly in this matter as well as with 11 respect to other matters.

12 8. From time to time, there were time entries that were entered into the electronic database 13 weeks or even months after the date at which the work was done. Often, this delay was due to the lag in 14 time between when the time was hand-written on time sheets or notepads, and when it was entered into 15 the database. During periods of peak activity in this case, attorneys worked 7 days per week and 10
16 hours per day. In such periods, time entries lagged the performance of work more than in quieter 17 periods. Sometimes time entries were delayed by weeks and, in some situations, a couple of months. In 18 my experience as someone who regularly works 80-100 hour work weeks, this is not unusual. At some 19 point, time-keepers caught up and became current with their time entries. On some occasions, the 20 persons charged with physically entering time into the billing systems could not decipher or could not 21 read the handwritten entries and had to follow up with the time-keepers to clarify handwriting before 22 entries were made into the system.

23 9. As part of finalizing the time summaries that JSLF maintained in the regular course of 24 business, I reviewed the records to make sure that all of the tasks that I had performed were entered.
25 There were a few entries of my time that were made based on these reviews that were created a 26 substantial time after the work was done, to reflect time spent at a meeting, court hearing, or other 27 event that I had attended, but for which I had not previously recorded time. For these entries, I used 28 records such as transcripts, notes, and billing entries of other JSLF time-keepers to refresh my

1 recollection of having performed the task, and made a conservative estimate of the time spent in 2 performance based on the records available to me. For example, in reviewing the time records for the 3 May 7 submission I created two entries—one for a case management conference I attended in this 4 Court on April 8, 2013, and one for a call I had with counsel for Plaintiff Devine on May 15, 2014; I
5 used transcripts of the conference and my own notes (as confirmed by the time entries for Devine’s 6 counsel) to create these entries. If I could not accurately estimate the time for such event, or could not 7 recall particular participation, I did not enter a time record, and no such entries were presented to the 8 Court. I am confident that the time submitted by JSLF in this matter is reliable and accurate.

9 10. This supplemental declaration also provides greater detail regarding the work done in 10 this case by JSLF related to (i) experts, (ii) briefing in the case, and (iii) our efforts to spearhead the 11 settlement.

12 11. With respect to our work related to expert witnesses, my Declaration at Docket No.
13 1073 ¶ 23 is supplemented as follows. I supervised on behalf of my firm the work done with respect to 14 experts. This included the decision to employ certain experts for purposes of class certification and 15 trial. It included the review, analysis and comment on expert reports and participation in telephone 16 conferences with the experts themselves or with counsel regarding those experts. I participated in the 17 preparation of witnesses for depositions, including Matthew Marx. With respect to the experts retained 18 by Defendants, it included the analysis of the expert reports, and the review of deposition transcripts.
19 Members of my firm synthesized the factual records and gather documents and deposition testimony, as 20 did members of Lieff Cabraser, for the benefit of the experts. I took the deposition of Defendants’
21 expert Kevin Murphy for one day and I took the deposition of Defendants’ expert David Lewin. I 22 analyzed and reviewed the transcripts of depositions taken by others. Such analysis informed my work 23 in other phases of the litigation, including class certification, settlement, appeals and trial preparation.

24 12. With respect to briefing, my Declaration at Docket No. 1073 ¶¶ 24, 25 is supplemented 25 as follows. I analyzed the issues to be addressed on class certification. At my direction, my staff 26 coordinated with Lieff Cabraser. This included analysis of the issues to be briefed as well as issues to 27 be addressed in reply to Defendants’ opposition. Much of the original authorship of the briefs was 28 performed by Lieff Cabraser. My office also participated in original drafting. I and members of my

1 firm commented on drafts. In addition, my firm gathered factual information from the discovery record
2 for citation in the briefs. Brendan Glackin and I agreed that Mr. Glackin would handle the oral 3 argument on class certification and I would handle the argument on the summary judgment motions.
4 Pursuant to that agreement, Mr. Glackin handled the class certification argument. To my mind, he did 5 an admirable job and plaintiffs prevailed on the motion as a result. With respect to summary judgment, 6 much of the original authorship of the briefs was performed by Lief Cabraser. My office also 7 participated in original drafting. I and members of my firm commented on drafts. In addition, my firm 8 gathered factual information from the discovery record for citation in the briefs.

9 13. With respect to settlement efforts, my Declaration at Docket No. 1073 ¶ 28 is 10 supplemented as follows: Kelly Dermody and I participated equally in the settlement efforts. From time 11 to time, Ms. Dermody and I had separate conversations with lawyers for Defendants or mediators. I did 12 not intend to suggest in my earlier declaration that Kelly Dermody and Lief Cabraser were not equally 13 involved in spearheading settlement efforts. I view the settlements as the direct result of the joint hard 14 work, perseverance and expertise of Ms. Dermody and myself.

15 14. Attached hereto as Exhibit 3 are correct copies of invoices supporting JSLF's cost 16 request. In the time since my declaration was filed, I and my staff working under my direction reviewed 17 my firm's receipts underlying the cost submission. We have not been able to locate transactional level 18 receipts for all charges recorded in the firm ledgers. In an abundance of caution, JSLF is reducing the 19 amount of costs for reimbursement from the $590,221.32 originally reported to $589,194.94. A revised 20 chart reflecting JSLF's unreimbursed costs is attached as Exhibit 4. For the Court's convenience, I
21 submit a chart at Exhibit 5 summarizing the unreimbursed costs sought by Class Counsel. The total 22 unreimbursed costs equal $1,231,276.66. Class Counsel seek the full $1.2 million in costs authorized 23

1 as provided in the notice to the class. Class Counsel do not seek reimbursement of any costs beyond the 2 $1.2 million provided in the notice to the class.

3 I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States and the State of California 4 that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and that this declaration was 5 executed in San Francisco, California on May 21, 2015.
